Immutable Query Ledger

[THE MECHANICS:]

This mechanism replaces standard direct database execution with an append-only, cryptographic verification layer. By treating each database query as a discrete, signed transaction -- modeled after supply chain provenance tracking -- the system requires a multi-signature validation for every data request. Before a query executes, it must be validated against a dynamic "State Schema" that acts as a structural firewall, ensuring the query structure matches the intent of the pre-authorized transaction block, effectively neutralizing malformed input injection at the architectural level rather than the code level.

[UTILITARIAN VALUE:]

Eliminates the risk of SQL injection by decoupling query generation from execution, ensuring that malicious string manipulation cannot alter the logic of the database command.

[TARGET ECOSYSTEM:]

High-security enterprise fintech and decentralized database management systems.
